

To whom it may concern,

I am this patient's General Medical Practitioner and the custodian of the primary medical records they have accumulated during their lifetime in the UK.

Following a recent Work Capability Assessment this patient, in contradiction of my own knowledge of the patient over time, clinical assessment and medical certification,

was found fit for work or

was placed in the WRAG (work related activity group)

The patient's Past Medical History and current problems include:

- 1
- 2
- 3
- 4
- 5

Although this person has been deemed "fit for work" I am of the opinion that exceptional circumstances Regulation 29 may apply.

Because of your physical or mental health condition or disability, there would be a substantial risk to the mental or physical health of any person, including you, if you were found not to have limited capability for work. (Regulation 29)

Or with regard to the WRAG group decision that regulation 35 may apply:

Because of your physical or mental health condition or disability there would be a substantial risk to the mental or physical health of any person, including you, if you were found not to have limited capability for work-related activity. (Regulation 35)

I am of this opinion because:

I disagree with the outcome of your assessment and support my patient in their appeal against your decision.

Yours sincerely
